WHO SITS ON THE THRONE?

Galatians 2:20 says "For I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live but Christ in me. And the life I now live in the flesh, I live by faith in the son of God who loved me and gave himself for me."

What are some observations about this verse?
Most would say "being crucified" is not good news. How do you think this would be good news?
Or to put it another way: If you were the master of your own island, how would it be good news to be conquered?

Consider three scenarios: (Write in the aspects of someone's life for each circle, i.e. academics, finances, relationships, etc. They should look the same in each scenario.)
(1) Self on the throne [Non-Christian]
How does it feel if one rules their own life? Consider who this person turns to when they need help, how they protect themselves, and concerns they might have.

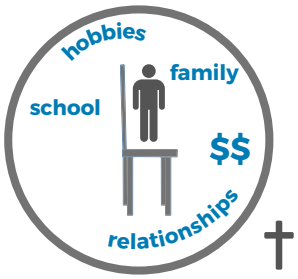

(2) Self on the throne; Jesus assisting with life [Cultural Christian]
What does it feel like to have Jesus assisting in someone's life? What would be indicators of a life like this? What would it take to "lose" favor in this situation? What feelings would come from this type of situation? Would it look any different than the first situation?

(3) Jesus sits on the throne; self inside of life [Contagious Christian]
What does it feel like to have someone who is good and powerful be in charge of someone's life? What is appealing about this? What is challenging?

How would it feel to have someone conquer your private island if they would rule the island better than you?

Non-Christian

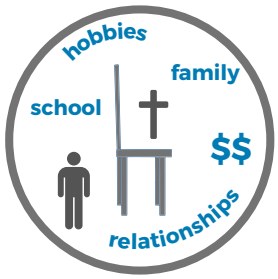

Self-Directed Life

Self is on the throne.
Christ is outside the life.
Interests are directed by self, often resulting in anxiety and frustration.

Contagious Christian

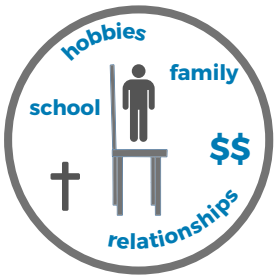

Christ-Directed Life

Life is Christ-centered
Self has been dethroned
Interests are still present but point back to Christ, leading to hope, joy and peace.

Cultural Christian

Self-Directed Life

Self is on the throne.
Christ is dethroned.
Interests reveal a loss of love for God, His plans, and His ways; anxiety remains yet legalism reigns.

Questions to Consider:

Which picture most accurately displays your life? Why do you think that?
Which picture displays what you desire your life to look like? Why?
What action will you take to move towards the picture you desire?
